

The Boys Room

DID YOU ever think how important it is that it be properly furnished. Did you ever know how a boy likes to show his companions his bedroom. Mayn't we walk down life's pathway as husband and wife?" Is your boy ashamed of his? May-be you have never given much attention to this, figuring it was just the boy's room, but if you want to make your boy truly love and cherish his home fit But I'll get it all back on that Bald-Headed Man!" it up so that he will be proud of it. Our line of bedroom furnishings are cheap enough when you come to think of it, so that the beys room can easily be a room that both you and he will be proud of.

A STIRRING TALE OF LOVE AND BUSINESS.

Written for the Record-Press by ROBERT C. HAYNES Author of "This Funny World," "Dark Days and Bright," Etc.

'What a dear girl you are!-but why say 'Mr. Green'? Why not call me Pounder-won't you, Imogene? For 'twas you that I met! May I love you thro' life?

'Oh, my! What a pity it is, Pounder Green, That our views here converge!" smiled the fair Imogene: 'For I can't be your wife-ah, how could it be so, When, to tell you the truth, I am soon to wed Joe?"

"You are soon to wed Joe?" answered Green. "Oh, I see, And of course you will be a dear sister to me! Well, I'll just say by-by! It has altered my plan,

XI.

THE WEDDING DAY.

It was ev'ning once more, and the stars, now aglow, Seem'd to wink at each other -- why should it be so? Why should not e'en the stars be thus mirthful and gay, Since this was the fair Imogene's wedding-day?

The guests had arrived; all was laughter and glee; And the minister, too-Brother Brownlow McGee-Had just crowded within, where one scarcely could stand. When some one announced that "the bridegroom's at hand!"

"Now brethren and sisters and friends, give us room." The minister said, while as hush'd as the tomb Were the voices so mirthful a moment before, As the bridegroom and bride now appeared at the door.

'Now before I proceed, friends," the preacher began, 'I would kindly suggest to the Bald-Headed Man That he move further onward and sit there between the Evansville management for who has been in the employ of The Man-At-The-Top and the Hard-Pounding Green."

The design of King George's crown will be practically the same as that or King Edward, which in turn was a replica of the crown worn by Queen Victoria at her coronation in 1838. The royal crowns, however, are remade for each coronation. This is necessary, of course, on account of the difference in the sizes of the heads of the respective monarchs. First Coronation Order.

It is historically interesting to note that the first coronation order was printed from a Rouen manuscript, but it is also found in a manuscript said to be the pontificial of Egbert, archbishop of York from 753 to 766. A striking conservatism has character-Street ized the coronation services of all British sovereigns.
